POETRY.

AFFECTION'S TOKEN.

BY J. ROBINS.

THE infant when it lisps its pray'r,
And goes to slumber on its bed,
Unconscious of all worldly care,
Which yet has fall'n off on his head;
When its last words, "good night," are spoken,
Looks for a kiss—affection's token.

The youth when going from its home,
To trudge thro' learning's thorny way,
Regrets the parting hour when come,
But hails the look'd-for holiday;
Though separation's pang is broken
By some kind gift—affection's token.

To manhood grown—a lover now—
Affection takes another turn;
To some lov'd fair he breathes his vow,
And ardent passions in him burn:
The altar proves the truths he's spoken,
The ring becomes affection's token.

A husband now, and parent soon,
He feels a father's tender care;
A lisping infant—nature's boon—
Claims, with his wife, an equal share;
To both the words of love are spoken,
Seal'd with a kiss—affection's token.

Time wears away, and years pass by,
And grey hairs crown both man and wife;
But age has charms, when children try
To smooth their parent's path thro' life;
By this the ills of life are broken,
'Tis then, in truth, affection's token.

And when at last death calls us hence,
To realms of pure and endless bliss,
The charms of life then can best dispense.
Is in the consciousness of this:
That nought against us can be spoken,
Oh then death seems affection's token.

Thus then through life we find its charm
Is centered in affection's tie;
The heart when cold and sear'd 'twill warm,
'Twill banish too the sigh:
Life's path is thorny, rough, and broken,
Divested of affection's token.

FEMALE FAITH.

BY MISS L. E. LANDON.

She loved you when the sunny light
Of bliss was on your brow;
That bliss has sunk in sorrow's night,
And yet—she loves you now.

She loved you when your joyous tone
Taught every heart to thrill;
The sweetness of that tongue is gone,
And yet—she loves you still.

She loved you when you proudly stept
The gayest of the gay;
That pride the blight of time has swept,
Unlike her love, away.

She loved you when your home and heart
Of fortune's smile could boast;
She saw that smile decay—depart—
And then she loved you most.

O, such the generous faith that grows
In woman's gentle breast,
'Tis like that star that stays and glows
Alone in night's dark vest;

That stays because each other ray
Has left the lonely shore,
And that the wanderer on his way
Then wants her light the more.

FROM THE BOSTON CENTINEL.

HYMN.

On account of the Cholera.

Spare mighty God in mercy spare
The creatures of thy sovereign will,
Sweep Nature's poison from the air
And say in pity—"Peace! be still!"

Mid gloomy fears from day to day
Thy creatures live Eternal King,
Oh chase their gloomy thought away
And shield them with thy mighty wing.

Let not the scourge of Asia sweep
O'er fair Columbia's wide domain,
But bid the poisonous blast to sleep
Or waste it on the western main.

Hear us thy guilty creatures, God!
Let mercy be thy motto still,
But if we need thy chastening rod
Fit us! Oh fit us! for thy will.

Thus shall the sons of Earth rejoice
By land and flood, with one accord
And every heart and every voice
Shall sing the goodness of the Lord.

THE CHOLERA.—The following is an extract from a letter from a highly respectable gentleman in Montreal, to his friend in Boston, dated July 2d.

"You will not see much that you can depend on in the public papers or reports. The Cholera has been through Quebec and Montreal; commenced here about the 10th June, and appears to have nearly if not quite subsided. Very few if any, under 20 years of age have been attacked by the epidemic; in almost every case of death the constitution has been enfeebled, from 1000 to 1200 adults have fallen in this city; the intemperate men and the prostitutes have suffered dreadfully.

"My practice for the last month has been to walk about the city and suburbs, very much, and be with the poor emigrants, who are really the most healthy of our population, and the lower class of Canadians the most sickly. The Montreal Temperance Society contains about 350 members, most of them fathers of families—containing about 1500 individuals, which forms about 5 per cent. of the population of this city; we have not known of more than 3 or 4 deaths by the Cholera among them.—There are three great features which constitute the Cholera, viz: vomiting, purging, and cramps or spasms; these do not always all occur in each case—There is a great variety in the manner in which persons are first attacked.

"I do not think the Cholera will rage much in New-England, the industrious, temperate, regular, calm, judicious, comfortable habits of the people will do much to prevent the fatal effects of that dreadful scourge.

"Fear is a great evil and tends much to predispose the system to take the Cholera, and, when taken, aggravates it very much; therefore, keep tranquil.

"Regular exercise, while it will occupy, will also tend to calm the mind, cause an appetite for food and sleep, and thus keep the body healthy and vigorous, which, I think, is the best security against the prevalent disease.—The peculiar feature in this disease, which gives it the name of Asiatic Cholera, and which produces such fatal results, is, that the blood seems to retire to the chest and stagnate, thus producing death. After death the body appears very much like those that have been drowned. The reason why young persons are not attacked, is because their constitutions are healthy, their blood circulates rapidly, and their whole system vigorous.

"The reason why the drunkards are most sure to fall, is, because they have enfeebled their constitutions by strong drink, and having been accustomed to stimulate to the top of the tide, consequently can do no more, and fall. Do not starve yourself, for that would not be temperance nor regularity, but would be dangerous, because it would enfeeble the body, and thus predispose your system to an attack. I send you Doctor Nelson's pamphlet on the Cholera in this city, which you can depend on much more than other statements, although they may be made by persons who have been here."

From Dr. NELSON's Sketch of the History and Progress of the present Cholera Epedemic in Montreal, we make the following extracts:—

"Much may be said in favor of the idea that the disease is contagious seeing that it has gradually overrun the East, following the route of great rivers, &c to the most western confines of Europe; but certainly there are many and strong facts against that opinion. In Montreal, without a shadow of doubt, the disease existed before we had any intercourse with an infected country. Several cases broke out in the early part of April; after which the disease disappeared, and again broke out in a mild form about the 1st of June, in quarters of the suburbs to the east and north of the town, among natives who had little or rather no intercourse with the port. After being more or less confined to the quarters mentioned, it gradually extended in every direction, but to the town last, and with the exception of the case on the 10th, to the parts of the town bordering on the port the very last.

"The disease, in its rage, after ravaging in a signal manner the poor, extended to all classes, attacking alike those few who had suffered absolute exclusion, and sparing thousands of those constantly exposed to its fury. A few medical men suffered from, and one student died of the disease; but the greater number had been rendered susceptible from over exertion and consequent exhaustion.—The Clergy, to the number of about thirty persons,—unremitting in the zeal of their calling, carrying spiritual succour to all quarters, at all hours, with as much devotedness to the most abject and filthy as to the more wealthy friend,—to a man escaped. Also the persons in charge of the two cholera hospitals, where were carried the worst cases, the expiring, and many dead,—all escaped. The carters too, constantly employed to carry the affected to the depots, and the numerous dead to the cemeteries,—all escaped. Yet it must not be concealed, that where one person died another case was likely to occur; but this was far from being universal, rather the reverse was the fact.

WAR AGAINST THE MALAYS.—The following is part of a letter to the Editors of the N. Y. Daily Advertiser, from their correspondent on board the U. S. Frigate Com. Downes, which, it will be remembered, was sent out to obtain redress or inflict punishment on the Malays of Sumatra, for their attack on the ship Friendship, of Salem. The letter is dated Isle of Sumatra, Soo-So, Feb. 15, 1832.

"I suppose now that you would like to hear something about our proceedings and operations at Qualah Battoo, a town distant about 5 or 6 miles from this place. We arrived at Qualah Battoo on the 5th inst. after a passage in 55 days from the Cape of Good Hope—We came in with our ship dressed [illegible] a merchantman, and with Danish colors flying. So complete was our disguise, that the enemy was not aware of our character. Shortly after we had anchored our anchors, Com. Downes sent a party on shore for the purpose of reconnoitering the place. This party consisted of our 1st Lieut. Mr. Shubrick, 1st Lieut. of Marines, Mr. Edson; Lieut. Pinkham, Hoff, and Ingersoll. [illegible] Sailing master, Totten, and passed midshipman Tooly. Mr. Shubrick was as Captain of the ship, Mr. Edson as supercargo. The remainder in the capacity of common sailors, and were dressed in a manner conformable to their different characters assumed. Their design was to examine the relative position of the different forts previous to making the intended attack. But they found the beach lined with a large body of men, exhibiting a warlike appearance, and manifesting hostile intentions; consequently they did not deem it prudent to land. They therefore returned to the ship, having obtained but an imperfect idea of the place. As soon as the information of the hostile appearance of the Malays ashore was announced, our ship presented a busy scene. An attack upon the town the next morning was determined upon, and every necessary preparation was accordingly made. At 12 o'clock on the morning of the 6th, all hands assigned to take part in the expedition were called, mustered, and received their instructions. At about 2, they left the ship. There was a moment of interest. All before, in regard to fighting the Malays, had been idle talk, but now was stern reality. The moment had arrived when the grand object of our voyage hither was to be accomplished. The blow was now to be struck, and secrecy to defeat success. It seemed as though a spell had taken upon the ship. The expedition proceeded silently on their midnight errand in perfect silence, save an occasional whisper from the officer in command, with muffled oars, and nothing but a star to guide them to their place of disembarkation. A landing was effected [illegible] a mile and a half from the town, without discovery. The troops, amounting to [illegible] men in number, were then all drawn up in regular order, under the chief command of Lieut. Shubrick, took up their line of march against the enemy. They had not proceeded far along the beach before they were discovered by a native, who appeared at a season running with full speed to give intelligence of an approaching foe. As soon as this was perceived, Mr. Shubrick ordered his men to quicken their pace, to press onward, and if possible to take possession of the fort ere the enemy should be apprised of his approach. They accordingly commenced a rapid march, which soon brought them up with the first fort, when a detachment of men under the command of Lieut. Hoff, filed off, and commenced an assault upon it. This fort, was found to be of very difficult access, in consequence of a deep hedge of thorn bushes and brambles with which it was environed. As the entrance to it was attended with so much difficulty, it gave the enemy time to place himself in a state of preparedness as the whizzing of balls from his fort soon after evinced. The natives now raised their war-whoop, and resisted most manfully. They fought indeed like lions and tigers just roused from their lair.—But they fought in vain, for the fort was stormed and soon carried. Not, however, till almost every man valued in it was killed. One of their chiefs, Pou-Mahomet, a man of considerable distinction among them, and who was principally concerned in taking the "Friendship," lost his life at this fort. It is stated, that his no heroic law was also slain here. Another woman, likewise met her death at this fort, but what her rank was has not yet been ascertained. She was however a brave woman and fought with the spirit of a desperado.—A seaman by the name of John L. Dubois, who somewhat distinguished himself on the occasion, had just scaled one of the ramparts, when he was severely wounded by a blow from a sabre in both hands; but her own life was the forfeiture, for she was immediately transfixed by a bayonet in the hands of the same individual, whom she had so severely wounded. Meanwhile, Lieuts. Edson, and Tertet, accompanied with a corps of Marines, had proceeded onward and hotly attacked a fort in the rear of the town, which after a spirited resistance on the part of the enemy, surrendered. Both the officers and marines, here, narrowly escaped with their lives, for one of the natives in the fort had trained his gun in such a manner as to take their whole body, when he was shot down by a marine, by the name of Houston, in the very act of applying a match to it.—N. Y. Daily Advertiser.

[illegible] session.

IN SENATE, TUESDAY, JULY 3, 1832.

The Public Lands Bill was read a third time and passed, Yeas 29 Nays 19, and sent to the other House for concurrence.

The Tariff Bill was then taken up, and several important amendments to the bill were adopted. Adj.

Wednesday, July 4.

The bill making appropriation for the improvement of harbors, rivers, &c was taken up and disposed of. Mr. Robinson of this State, offered an amendment appropriating $24,000 for a Breakwater, at Little Compton,—agreed to. Mr. R. moved also an appropriation of $3,000 for a survey of the harbor of Bristol, for the same object, which after discussion, was negatived. The bill finally passed, yeas 25 nays 16.

The Tariff Bill was further discussed, and at an early hour the Senate adj.

Thursday, July 5.

The resolution of the House to adjourn on the 9th inst. was postponed to Saturday.

The Tariff Bill was taken up, and various amendments carried, with more or less opposition—after which, the Senate adjourned.

Friday, July 6.

The Senate were engaged nearly all day in further discussing the details of the Tariff bill. The Bill having been gone through was finally reported to the Senate as amended.

The Senate adjourned at 7 o'clock, the pending question being upon reducing the duty on Ravens duck.

Saturday, July 7.

The Senate were occupied until near 3 o'clock, in debating on the amendments to the Tariff Bill, when it took a recess till 5 o'clock. In the Evening Session, the debate on the Bill was resumed, and the amendments to the Bill having been gone through with, the final question, after a long discussion, on the bill, was taken and carried by Yeas 31, Nays [illegible]. When at near 3 o'clock the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES,

Tuesday, July 3.

After [illegible] motions to amend the [illegible] Bank bill, the previous question was [illegible] and the final question on the passage of the bill was taken, and [illegible] in the affirmative, Yeas 107 Nays [illegible]. [The bill was then returned to the Senate, when the amendment [illegible] by the Branches of the Bank now existing in any State, to continue, was concurred in. The bill only [illegible] the President to [illegible].]

The [illegible] in the Senate, to regulate the distribution of the proceeds of the sales of the public lands, was after some debate, postponed to the 1st Monday in December next, by yeas 92, nays 83.—The House then adjourned.

Wednesday, July 4.

The House were principally engaged in passing private bills, and adjourned at an early hour.

Thursday, July 5.

Mr. Drayton, from a majority of the committee appointed to inquire whether any [illegible] was made by the late Secretary of War, John H. Eaton, fraudulently to give Samuel Houston, or any other person or persons concerned with the said Houston, a contract for supplying rations to emigrating Indians, made a report, accompanied with the following resolves:

Resolved, That John H. Eaton, the late Secretary of War, and Samuel Houston do stand entirely acquitted in the judgment of this House, from all imputation of fraud, either committed, or attempted to be committed by them, or by either of them, in any matter relating to, or connected with the premises.

Resolved, That all the evidence which was submitted to the committee, together with the journal of their proceedings [illegible] not recorded with this report, which report was read and the resolves therewith ordered to be printed.

Mr. Stanbery, on behalf of himself, and Mr. [illegible] Potter, of the minority of the committee, made a counter report, [illegible] that in their opinion [illegible] the contract referred to [illegible] the House, for supplying rations to emigrating Indians, [illegible] Secretary of War did act improperly in giving said contract to [illegible] this was known [illegible] but is attributable to [illegible] extraordinary [illegible].

Mr. [illegible] of the same minority, [illegible] in support of their views [illegible] which reports were read and [illegible] to be printed.

The [illegible] proceeded to the consideration of the bill concerning Invalid Pensioners.

The House then went into committee on numerous private bills, with which they were occupied for the remainder of the day.

Late Foreign Intelligence.

NEW-YORK, JULY 11.

LATE FROM ENGLAND.

By the Ship Carroll of Carrollton, Capt. Ingersoll, from Liverpool, we have received London papers to June 3d, from which we subjoin all we find worth extracting.

In the Lords, on the 1st of June, the Duke of Newcastle withdrew his motion on the subject of an undue creation of Peers. The Reform Bill was ordered, on motion of Earl Grey, to be read a third time on Monday, the 4th.

In the House of Commons, on the 1st of June, the Chancellor of the Exchequer presented the Glasgow petition, signed by upwards of one hundred and sixty thousand, against granting the supplies until the reform bill shall become a law.

LONDON, JUNE 3.—We have little to add to our observations of last week on the progress of the Reform Bill. Our anticipations have been fully realized. The third reading is fixed for to morrow. The Lords are, on the motion of the Marquess of Salisbury, summoned to attend; but we apprehend that the greater portion of the dissentients will prefer the payment of the fine as absentees, rather than incur the disgrace of retiring from a division or run the risk, by voting against the bill of once more exciting the passions of the people. The Bill, as we said before, will therefore, after the ceremony of a few protests, be then read a third time, and on Wednesday, or most probably Thursday, receive the Royal Assent. The Times recommends, with some felicity, that the rejoicings on the passing of the second Magna Charta should take place on the 16th June, the anniversary of the signing of the first. By that time Ireland and Scotland will, in the passing of the measures which apply to their representation, be able to exchange congratulations with England, and one universal Jubilee may be held throughout the land.

SUSPICIOUS MOVEMENTS OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY.—The news from the frontiers of Poland, of May the 15th, conveys the important intelligence, that movemovements were observed in the Russian Army which indicated a change of the corps, and the assembling of a large force on the Prussian and Austrian frontiers. Eighty thousand fresh troops were said to be on their march to Poland to garrison the places now occupied by the troops that are to advance to the western frontiers. The Allgemeine Zeitung, of the 24th of May, says, there must be some great political object in this manoeuvre, which is attended with too much expense to be intended merely to exercise the troops; and adds, that a short time will solve the enigma, and acquaint the world with the intentions of the Cabinet of St. Petersburgh.

An express was received last night, by an Evening paper (the Standard,) bringing accounts from Paris up to Thursday morning. According to all the Journals, both in the interest of the Government and its opponents, the movements of the Carlists had begun to excite alarm, and troops were marching from every direction on La Vendee, where it was reported that Marshall Bourmont has taken command of the rebels. At Lusignan, Angers, Bourbon, Vendee, Vannes, Nantes Rennes, Chateaubriant, Mons, and Alencon, there have been either partial risings or open rebellion, and it is stated confidently, in one of the communications, that five departments will be declared in a state of seige, or, as we phrase it, under martial law. Allowing for all exaggeration, there can be no question that in many places the troops and the people have come into serious collision. The high price of bread in some districts has been alleged as one of the main causes of discontent, but it cannot from a sufficient explanation of the acknowledged fact, that bands of three or four hundred men have appeared in arms, and attacked and defeated the Royalist forces. We look on the project of the Carlists as the desperate efforts of hopeless men; but in the present state of France they may do much injury to the established Government.

FRANCE.

Manifesto of the French Opposition.—A grave subject of uneasiness to the French government, is the manifesto of the Opposition Deputies to the nation, which appears in all the Paris papers of May 30th. A meeting was held at M. Lafitte's a few days previous, at which 30 members of the Chamber were present for the purpose of organizing a systematic opposition to the remains of the Casimir Perier Cabinet, and taking other measures for bringing back the Cabinet of Louis Philippe to those principles which he is said to have accepted as the conditions of his elevation to the throne during the revolutionary ferment of July. This compterendu, as it is called, is the joint production of some of the most distinguished members of the Chamber, having been written by M. Odillon Barrot, edited by M. Cormenin, and revised by M. Manguin and Cormenin.

It is contained at length in the London Morning Post of June 2d, where it makes about a column and a half. The signatures of 41, including the names above mentioned, and those of Gen. Lafayette, Gen. Lamarque, (written by proxy, he being on his death bed) De Tracy, Lafitte, &c. It commences thus:

"To our Constituents.—The undersigned Deputies present at Paris convinced of the perils of a system which removes the government farther and farther from the revolution which created it, regard it, in the present situation of France, the most imperious of their duties to render an account to their constituents of their principles and their votes. If it has not been in their power to bring back the government to the conditions of its own preservation, it is at least in their power to point out the danger. Our revolution of 1830 has been variously construed. Some see in it but an incident, a modification of the restoration, and have thence concluded that the men and principles of the restoration were to be the principles and men of the new Government. The influence of this opinion was exemplified in all the phases of the late long and barren Session. It was evident in the debates upon the Civil List, on the Peerage, and the organization of the army: it presided over the discussions of the Budget; it directs the Administration of the empire, and regulates our conduct towards foreign Powers.

[They go on to specify various particulars in which they have witnessed on the part of the Ministry, a position contrary to the Spirit of the Revolution of July.—They instance the large appropriations giving to the new Monarchy an air of opulence—the attempt of the Ministry to re-establish in France the old feudal word "subject" instead of citizen—the privilege conceded to the Peers of holding their titles for life, instead of holding them at the pleasure of the King,—the inefficient organization of the National Guard,—the unnecessary amount of taxation for purposes unconnected with the defence of the country, &c. &c. They then pass to the relations of France with foreign powers.]

LONDON, June 3.—We are able to state positively that Prince Talleyrand has been invited by the French King and two members of his Cabinet, to visit Paris, for the purpose of conferring with them on the critical state of affairs, and offering his advice as to the proposed modification of the Ministry.—It was intended at one time to offer him the Presidency of the Council, but it is now thought he is not sufficiently popular for such a post.

LIVERPOOL, June 4.—The motion for the third reading of the bill is fixed for to-day. It is expected, that the ultras, who have purposely absented themselves from the committee, will allow it to pass without opposition.

THE CHOLERA.—The disorder, since it first made its appearance in Liverpool and its vicinity, has not, we rejoice to say, made much progress among our crowded population.—Limited, however, as its ravages have happily been, its presence has called forth a spirit of resistance to the benevolent exertions of the medical men and the parochial authorities which is as disgraceful to the lower classes as it is likely to be injurious—perhaps fatal, to the unfortunate victims of the pestilence. Ignorance like that which has been displayed during the past week would have been deemed incredible, had it not been witnessed in different parts of the town. The poor, if they persist in their ferocious resistance to their best friends, will be the greatest sufferers by their own misconduct.

We hear that several of the medical men, who devote their time and their skill to the service of the poor, without fee or reward, alarmed at the ferocious spirit displayed by the ignorant during these disgraceful riots, have come to the resolution of sending in their resignations. Several of the medical men in Toxteth park have already resigned. The Mayor and Magistrates have issued placards, threatening to prosecute all persons who oppose the removal of patients to the Hospital, or who obstruct and assault the professional gentlemen in the discharge of their irksome and perilous duties in the cause of humanity. The Board of Health have also issued a playcard, in which they point out the folly, as well as the positive inhumanity, of the conduct of which ignorant wretches have been guilty.

LONDON, June 1.—Despatches have been received this day from St. Michaels, dated the 16th ult. At that time Don Pedro had assembled eleven thousand of his troops, who were all in the highest spirits. The state of the wind had prevented the arrival of the other troops from the different islands, but it was expected by the 25th or 26th, the whole force would be collected and on its way to Portugal.

NEWPORT,

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 14.

STATE ELECTION.

There being no choice of either Governor, Lt. Governor, or Senators, at the May Election, the House of Representatives directed another trial to take place on Wednesday next, the 18th inst.—The three tickets in nomination are the same, with but one exception, as were voted for at the late election.—Joseph Childs, of Portsmouth, is substituted for Charles Collins of Newport, as Lieut. Governor in the National Republican Prox.

There can be but little doubt as to the result of this Election, as it is very evident, so long as three different tickets continue to be voted for, no choice can take place.

As there is at this time, little or no excitement on the subject of the Election, we may calculate on a great diminution of the votes from the last trial.

We have been requested to mention, that a motion will be made at the Town-Meeting on Wednesday next, to cause the Houses in this Town to be re-numbered, and the names of the streets to be new painted.

CONGRESS.—In the Senate, on Monday last, (the Vice-President having left Washington for his residence in South-Carolina) Mr. Tazewell was elected President pro tem. on the fifth ballot, he having 24 votes.

The Tariff Bill was read a third time, and the question being on its final passage, a discussion took place, in which Messrs. Webster, Grundy, King, Clay and Hayne, participated. The bill was then passed by Yeas 32, Nays 16, and sent to the House for concurrence.

The resolution from the House fixing on the 9th as the day of adjournment, was amended by substituting the 16th, and then it was agreed to; soon after the Senate adj.

In the House, the joint resolution from the Senate relative to a Fast Day, having been taken up, a discussion occurred, during which much intemperate language appears to have been used. Finally, the resolution was referred to a select committee of three members, and that the 2d of August should be named as the day recommended by Congress.

The amendment of the Senate to the resolution, fixing on Monday, the 16th inst. as the day of adjournment, was after some debate, postponed to Wednesday.

The Tariff Bill from the Senate was then taken up and soon after the House took a recess until 5 o'clock, when the discussion on the Senate's amendments was resumed, and was not concluded when the Washington papers of Tuesday morning went to press. The following is the report of the proceedings up to that hour.

The House refused to concur in the amendment limiting the duty on Kendall cottons to those weighing more than 16 ounces to the square yard—yeas 62, nays 66.

The other amendments in this paragraph were concurred in, except that which increases the ad valorem rate of duty on woollens generally from 50 per cent. to 57 per cent. which was disagreed to—yeas 68, nays 77.

The amendment making the duty on plated or silvered wire 25 per cent. instead of 5 per cent. ad valorem, was concurred in.

The amendment increasing the duty on common tinned and jappanned saddlery from 10 per cent. to 25 per cent. was not concurred in, Ayes 64, noes 78.

The amendment altering the duty on sail duck, from 15 per cent. to a specific duty of 8 cents on duck, and 4 cents on raven's duck, was now concurred in without a count.

The amendment increasing the duty on cotton bagging from 3 1-2 to 4 cents per pound was not concurred in, ayes 64, noes 81.

The amendment relative to the duty on silk goods was agreed to.

Mr. Drayton moved to amend the amendment respecting sugar by reducing the duty to 1 1-2 cents a pound, which was not decided when we went to press.

The President had made no communication to Congress, on the subject of the U. S. Bank Bill, as late as Monday evening last.

DISTRESSING CASUALTY.—On Saturday afternoon, (after several weeks of dry weather) a heavy black cloud from the s. w. passed over this town, and was followed by a tremendous flash of lightning, accompanied with torrents of rain.—The lightning struck the House of Job Sherman, in Thames-street, and we lament to state, instantly killed his eldest daughter, Rebecca Sherman, who was in the act of shutting the chamber window. The electric fluid passed down by the side of the chimney, and spread in various directions, doing considerable damage to the house and furniture.—We believe this is the first instance, in more than 70 years, of a person being killed by lightning in this town.

THE CHOLERA.—At New York, the number of cases in private houses reported within the 24 hours, ending on Sunday at noon, was 29, deaths 10; new cases where the patients were conveyed to hospitals, 13, deaths 11, cured 4. Total cases 42, deaths 21.

Reported on Monday, at noon, cases in private houses 18, deaths 4, cured 1. In the four hospitals, cases 30, deaths 10, cured 6. In the Hospital at Bellvue, cases [illegible], deaths 14, cured 3. Total of cases 10[illegible], deaths 28.

On Tuesday, cases in private houses 4[illegible], deaths 6; at the hospitals, 22 cases, 1[illegible] deaths; at Bellevue, 43 cases, 25 deaths. Total 109 cases, 44 deaths.

On Wednesday last, cases in private houses 45, deaths 10; Hospitals, 31 cases, 15 deaths; Bellevue 53 cases, 25 deaths. Total 129 cases, 50 deaths.

At Albany, on Saturday evening last, the Board of Health reported 10 cases and [illegible] deaths. On Sunday evening, 11 cases and 3 deaths. On Monday, 18 cases and [illegible] deaths.

Drs. Mauran, Webb, and Tobey, of Providence, who have recently visited New York for the purpose of gaining the most accurate information relative to the Cholera, in a letter to the editor of the Journal remark:—

"The number of cases observed in us was rising of 200; and the mortality among them was frightfully great; indeed, at some places, death seemed to ride triumphant, and govern with almost despotic sway. We witnessed many post mortem examinations, and a very great variety of treatment. The disease we consider as rather upon the decrease, but are satisfied that its ravages are confined almost exclusively to the intemperate and dissipated; and that there exists no just cause for alarm among those of our citizens who are excesses of every description, and let temperate, sober, and fearless live. Many facts came to our knowledge, that serve to show the inutility and inefficacy of a strict quarantine; and also the importance of having temporary hospitals located in various sections of the city, especially as we are satisfied that those who live in the immediate vicinity of them, need be under no apprehension of danger therefrom.

The Providence Journal of Yesterday says:—

The Steam-Boat President arrived from New-York, at an early hour yesterday morning, with about ninety passengers, and was immediately visited by the health officer. There being a man sick on board, she was not permitted to come to the city. Subsequently the President was permitted to depart from Providence, when she landed her passengers in Seekonk, Massachusetts. Among the passengers, are three physicians from Boston and the three from this city, who have been to New-York to examine into the nature and cure of the Cholera.

We are authorized by the Health officer to state, that the man above alluded to, has had, in his opinion, nothing more than the common cholera morbus of the country; and that, at 7 o'clock last evening, he left him convalescent; to use Dr. Richmond's own words, he "left him at the table drinking his tea."

City Council.—The Boards of Aldermen and Common Council convened to-day at the request of the Mayor, to take into consideration the necessity and propriety of passing an ordinance to prevent any person coming into the city, by land or water, from places infected with Cholera. The subject was referred to a joint committee of the boards.

The Mayor and Aldermen, acting as the Board of Health, authorized all the passengers of the President, who are in good health, to come into the city after 8 o'clock this morning, they first undergoing a fumigation and purification under the inspection of the health officer.

Providence Journal, of Yesterday.

CHOLERA.—A medical gentlemen, who left Montreal Tuesday evening, July 5, states as the result of his enquiries, that the number of cases had greatly diminished, and were daily decreasing—that the disease would probably cease in that place in a few days—that the number of deaths, as estimated by well informed judicious persons, had been 15[illegible] the population not much exceeding 30,000—that the fixed inhabitants had suffered more in proportion to their numbers, than the emigrants—that the intemperate had suffered most—that the disease in its earliest stage was controllable by proper treatment, nine out of ten recovering; but "when neglected until a state of collapse, nine out of ten will die"—that the Physicians of Montreal do not think the disease to be contagious, and were unanimous in the opinion that its prevalence and mortality had been greatly augmented by fear and the use of drugs, spirits, &c. preventives.

Mr. CALHOUN, in a letter addressed to a committee of a meeting held at Spring Grove, Laurens District, S. C. on the 2d ult. after declining their invitation to the dinner given on the occasion, observes:—

"I do most sincerely believe, that the cause of Carolina is the cause of the Constitution, of Liberty, and the Union. My opinion has not been hastily formed. It is the result of much reflection and long observation; and I am prepared to test its sincerity by sharing the fate of the State, be it what it may."

STEAM BOAT ACCIDENT.—As the steamboat Ohio was going up the North river on Friday evening, when near Sing-Sing, between 7 and 8 o'clock, the lower part of the steam-chimney gave way, and the scalding water poured forth into the fire-room and vicinity, causing the death of John Connor, of Albany; William Farnham, of Greenbush, and Eli Bower, of Pougkeepsie; also two of the crew are missing, (Samuel McMullen and Robert Steward) who, it is presumed, jumped overboard.—There were upwards of three hundred persons on board, part of whom went to Newburgh in the Experiment, and the remainder returned with the boat to New-York.

FROM MADEIRA.—Letters from Madeira to the 26th May, are received by way of Alexandria. We are favored with the following extract:

"The blockade of this Island has not been respected by the United States frigate Constellation, Capt. Reed.—American vessels therefore, have met with no obstruction in entering this port. On the 23d the whole of the blockading vessels disappeared from the coast, and it is supposed they have been recalled to head quarters to join Don Pedro's squadron, and proceed to Portugal.—The greatest tranquility prevails here."

The elderly gentleman who lately committed suicide in Philadelphia by taking laudanum, stated that he had done it, not from his misfortunes, but thro' an indescribable fear of the Cholera; that he had taken care that no means to rescue him should succeed, and that he should resist any antidote they should attempt to give him. His name was Carson, formerly a respectable bookseller.
